Ya'aburnee

a: dreamersdeservebetter

31/10/2016

Last update: 13/06/2017

(Arabic, noun) Both morbid and beautiful at once, this incantatory word means "You bury me," a declaration of one's hope that they'll die before another person because of how difficult it would be to live without them.

<http://archiveofourown.org/works/8434402/chapters/19323544>

Yawning 'cause we stayed up all night (ain't got time to be tired)

a: brokendevil

01/03/2019

Completed

Part 10 of prompts, one-shots and other drabbles

The music starts up just as Clarke is settling down to watch one of her many serial killer documentaries and she throws her head back dramatically. It's Saturday night and she's finished her shift at the bookstore and she just wants to relax with a little bit of murder and conspiracy theory in the safety of her New York apartment.

Yeeep, lets do dis

a: SkyGirl56577

14/08/2016

Completed

The neighbour above us keeps being really loud and we are done with talking to him so we meet up to plan our revenge.

<http://archiveofourown.org/works/7762906>

Yes & no

a: Sunrayne

28/08/2019

Last update: 04/09/2019

Theme park worker Clarke Griffin takes Lexa Woods' breath away and she also kinda wants to smack the blonde in her smug face.

(Or, Lexa is on a trip with her friends and an annoying but gorgeous girl gets her in trouble.)

<https://archiveofourown.org/works/20406454/chapters/48404794>

Yes, I over-think (but I also over-love)

a: notreallystraight

07/12/2016

Completed

Clarke's been able to see the future her entire life. Now she's finally gotten to the moment where she's meeting Lexa and falling for her harder than expected.

Clarke loves Lexa so much, but she's so "Clarke" she's scaring Lexa away

<http://archiveofourown.org/works/8782534/chapters/20133439>

Yes, I Will

a: Danger_Mouse

26/09/2019

Completed

Part 1 of Neverland

"You won't always be there to take care of me, Lexa." Clarke says softly, the warmth of her breath running up Lexa's face and over her chest.

"Yes, I will."

Or

Some teenage angst amidst a Clexa childhood to adulthood timeline.

Yesterday Upon The Stair

a: eternaleponine

31/10/2018

Completed

Clarke's friends decide to have a contest to see who can stay in the town's haunted house the longest. Clarke is sure she'll win, since she knows that ghosts aren't real, so houses can't actually be haunted. So why is it that every time she looks away from the girl in the old-fashioned riding costume, she disappears?

<https://archiveofourown.org/works/16478720>

Yet love knows not of death (nor calculous above the simple sum of heart plus heart)

a: amadgirlwithabox

18/03/2016

Completed

You're cold, you're thirsty, and you've never felt this tired in your life.

A lot of things have happened in the past two weeks. You feel sick when the image of Lexa being shot and bleeding out comes to your mind again (apparently, it doesn't have enough with being in your nightmares). She lived, of course.

<http://archiveofourown.org/works/6286729>

Yet to be Won

a: meteoritecrater

25/02/2015

You & Me

a: striker08

10/07/2016

Last update: 05/02/2017

Lexa is 21 years old. She finished her undergrad degree a semester early and was not quite sure what was next. She decided to become a substitute teacher while she figured it out. Polis High was in need of a substitute for the remainder of the year due to a teacher going out on maternity leave. Lexa got the job. There she meets a student who she just can't figure out, which intrigues her.

Clarke Griffin is a senior at Polis High. Her father died 5 months ago and her mother abandoned her. She is now looking after her 12 year old brother, but they are barely getting by. She must keep her home life a secret so they can stay together. However, a certain Miss Woods shows up and starts asking questions. Clarke doesn't know how much longer she can keep lying to the woman. The brunette may think she is helping, but she is really just making things a lot more complicated.

Last update: 18/09/2020

It all started with two small girls. One with eyes as green as the forest and a passion for peace. One with eyes like gold and a heart full of warrior spirt. Both girls conditioned for war from the time they could hold a sword. The girls were inseparable from the time they laid eyes on each other from across the training grounds. They spent day in and day out training and learning. Through rain and snow. Through the hottest days of the summer to the coldest days of winter. If they were not training for physical combat, they were training their minds for war. One in hopes to one day achieve peace among all and one in hopes to protect her people.

It is in moments like this that it starts to become incredibly hard for Clarke to decipher between God Lexa and real Lexa. Realistically she knows it can't be Lexa-Lexa, she is long dead, gone and never returning to her. It's been so many years now that she can't even hope for it despite how she craves her still. But the stoic mask that God Lexa arrives in strips the longer they spend time together and when they look at her like they are now, with bright eyes and near adoration, it becomes difficult for Clarke to think she's not here.

She swears, even though she knows it's impossible, that it's her staring at her. "Lexa."

"Good morning, students. I'm Miss Griffin. Now since this is the first day of this school year and I don't know all of you yet, how about you all briefly introduce yourselves?"

When it's Lexa's turn to introduce herself she rolls her eyes because this is childish. She had vaguely listened to other students introducing themselves, but she didn't care to truly listen. It's doubtful there would be any new students, and if there are, she isn't interested. She turns her face to look at her teacher. "Wow, well hello, gorgeous blonde. "What is she?" Clarke asks slowly in a quiet and curious tone as her clear blue eyes stay fixed on the glass in front of her.

Waller gazes over at the woman and then let's out a deep breath, her dark brown eyes following their way back to where Lexa is strapped in the small room in front of them. She gazes through the window and let's out a deep breath, not even sure how to begin to explain.

"You're not going to believe me when I tell you, but I guess we have to start somewhere." Letting out a tired huff, she picks up a folder off the desk in front of them that is marked as top classified and she shoves it into the soldier's hands.

Carefully, Clarke managed an only slightly shaky 'C', seeing the color settle brightly against her pale skin, before the teacher was calling for the class to put away the coloring supplies and Clarke quickly hid her wrist and looked up guiltily. No one said anything, though, and Clarke shoved the markers in the bin before holding her wrist gently against her stomach.

A chance encounter between UFC champion, Lexa Woods, and Dr. Clarke Griffin has monumental consequences in both their personal, and professional lives. With the biggest fight of Lexa's career coming up, and Clarke struggling to maintain at the top of her class in her last year of residency, these two soon realize the benefits working together could pose, if they keep their feelings in check. But victory always comes at a cost.

"I'm sorry to bother you at home like this," Lexa said quietly after a few minutes, breaking the doctor from her thoughts. The statement came out of her mouth lazily, each word connected slightly to the next. It sounded how cursive writing looked.

Clarke, now focused on the blood that had collected down Lexa's neck flicked her eyes up to look at the girl sitting below her. "It's really not a big deal. Perks of the job, right?"

"It doesn't sound like your leaders care very much for their people either." Lexa twirled her own knife in one hand. "I can't say I disapprove of them sending prisoners, but it was not a well-thought-out plan. They sent children. The people will not approve."

"Good. Maybe they'll find better leaders." Clarke tilted her head thoughtfully. "Perhaps they can be convinced to join the Kongeda. You'd lead them better than they lead themselves."

"I'm glad you think so highly of me, but you'd first need to inform your people of our existence. You've had good reason to keep it hidden with the- what do you call them?- delinquents in such disarray, but they must know before the rest come down."

Basically set approximately around the time of Lexa's duel with Roan--but the nightgown scene has still occurred in this fic. Clarke was captured by the very vampires she hunted for a living. Trapped in a cell with one of the bloodsucking beasts, she slowly realized that the only way they would get out was together.

But what then? And what would the others say if she came home with a vampire, one who had been imprisoned by her own kind?

She crept towards the huddled girl

"You startled me," she said quietly, trying not to spook her only potential ally. "Are... are you okay?"

At her words, the girl looked up, piercing emerald eyes glaring at Clarke. At first, she thought it was anger, but as she slowed her approach they flashed red. No, not anger; Hunger. Shit.

"Lexa?" Clarke asked in a small voice, causing the other girl to turn around.

"Can I ask you something?" Clarke sighed and crawled closer to Lexa, burying her face in the other girl's neck. She pressed a lazy kiss where her lips met the soft skin of the brunette.

"Of course, Clarke. What's up?" Clarke smiled contentedly as she felt Lexa tightening her hold on her.

"How do you feel about a baby?"

"Clarke...", she began, taking another step closer, but stopped when she saw Clarke flinch at the movement.

"Don't come near me...", Clarke warned her, but there was no strength left in her voice, and the flames of rage seemed to have died down in the sea of her eyes.

"I'm so sorry, Clarke. If I could go back and do things differently, I would. I swear on my life that I would." Lexa's words were desperate, and they fell through her lips without her being able to stop them. Clarke had never seen her so anguished, so restless and desperate for forgiveness. Clarke's heart ached for the sight of that no matter how hard she tried to stop it, yet she couldn't find it in herself to grant her that forgiveness.

"But you can't. You can't undo what you did, and I can't forgive you. I killed those people, and you killed me."

Turning her attention back to Lexa, she softly trails her finger across the girl's bare shoulder blade, coming to stroke the ends of the haphazard curls resting on her back. She tugs gently, grinning at the way Lexa's nose scrunches and brings her index finger to press against her furrowed brow, smoothing the indentation there.

Lexa's left eye (the one not pressed into a pillow) finally opens at this, and she gives Clarke a mock scowl. 'Can I help you?'
